Colonel Joseph Geoghegan was ordered to perform the duties of the office temporarily. The resignation of Samuel C. Park as brigadier general, which carries with it his staff, was also accepted. To add to the disordered state of affairs, an order was received yesterday that the old Armory building at Market and West Tempistreets would have to be vacated by July 1.

The resignations of Captain E. J. Skidmore of the signal corps and Lieutenant Adrian B. Pembroke of Company H. have also been received, but action on the matter has been deferred. It is further stated that several other officers of the guard intend to resign. The line officers of the guard are considering the matter of going out in a body. The national guardsmen are by no means reserved in their expressions of regret that the dismissal of Bowman could not have preceded instead of following the resignation of Brigadier General Park. They see no man in Utah who can satisfactorily fill Park's place and yet there is no possibility of Governor Cutler reappointing Park or even of Park accepting in case the executive should so do.

The men and officers have at least a dismal form of melancholy satisfaction that if Park is gone the man responsible for his going is no longer in.
